EDITORIAL COMMENT.

BACK TO THE BASIC.

There is only one way to consider business, and that is on basic business principles, says the Mining Record. Those who look for the unreasonable are usually disappointed. There are thousands who regard mining as some great mystery, in which the Magi wave their wands and pick out those upon whom to bestow fortunes. The search for gold has always been one of the romantic forms of business, and so long as folk will ask that it be continued along these lines, so long will there be disappointment.

When the production of a mine is sufficient to leave a net profit then the mine is as good as a factory, a railway or any other kind of business proportions considered. When the net profit of a mine is so great that it is several times the actual investment each year, then it is better than most factories, railways, banks or other business propositions.

The way to success in mining is building along business lines, looking for business profits and conducting the proposition on commonsense principles. Rich deposits of ore should come as happy surprises, and should be gauged by the net profit they pay—not by the effect on the market value of the stock.

"I am a part owner in a great gold mine," is the whispered and mysterious explanation of the investor who holds a small block of stock in a prospect. But he does not consider that his self-sufficient opinion is not going to make that prospect a mine.

The mines that make money are not merely the properties that have the ore reserves and the production, but the business institutions that handle the ore as a miller would wheat and flour, or as the railway official would freight and passengers. Therein lies the germ of success—common sense and basic business principles.

If the people of the East, who year after year, are forced to endure the awful heat that annually causes the death of thousands, knew of the delightful climate of Tonopah they would not stand on the order of their going, and would come at once to Southern Nevada. We have an unbroken succession of days and nights that are simply heavenly. There is never a night on the desert but what has the most delightful temperature.

Every one should turn out to the California Heights park this afternoon. The crowd last Sunday to see the ball game was one that certainly urged the players to do their best. Forget for the moment that you have any cares. The grandstand is comfortable and the pleasure of enjoying innocent amusement comes as near making the Sabbath what it should be—a day of rest. We shall have guests from Goldfield, and the people of Tonopah will make them welcome. Again we urge all our people to attend the games.

EPISCOPALIAN PRELATE HERE

BISHOP ROBINSON WILL OCCUPY THE PULPIT AT ST. MARK'S TODAY.

The Rt. Rev. Henry D. Robinson, Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Nevada, arrived in Tonopah yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, and will remain here for several days. He will occupy the pulpit at St. Mark's at both morning and evening services.

The new bishop is a man of perhaps fifty years of age, considerably above the average size, with a handsome, benign countenance, and his face and figure, while a considerably younger man, bears a strong resemblance to his great contemporary, Bishop Potter, of New York.

Bishop Robinson is Nevada's first bishop, having been elected to that office by the Baltimore council of last year, and was consecrated in April of this year and arrived in Nevada to assume the duties of his holy office about three months ago, locating in Reno, which he has chosen as his see. Previous to coming here he was engaged in pastoral duties in Wisconsin. Previous to his election the State was divided into two districts, the eastern being presided over by Bishop Spalding, of Salt Lake, and the western by Bishop Moreland, of Sacramento.

RECEPTION TO THE BISHOP.

A public reception to the new Bishop of Nevada will be held on Monday evening, from 8 to 10:30 o'clock, in the Miners' Hall. A cordial invitation is extended to all the people of Tonopah to attend this reception.

INTOXICATED MAN IS BADLY BURNED

CANDLE SETS FIRE TO THE BEDDING WHILE HE IS SLEEPING.

The Fire Department was called out last evening at 9:30 o'clock by a blaze near the extreme southern portion of town. When the alarm was telephoned to the fire house no definite directions were given, and consequently when the department reached upper Florence avenue the blaze could not be seen, as it was in the rear of the hill back of the Court House, and it was some five minutes before the fire could be found.

Arriving on the scene it was discovered that a tent house was a pile of smoldering ruins. It was owned and occupied by Fred Lund, and had a narrow escape from being incinerated. As it was he was severely burned about the head. Lund had evidently retired while in an intoxicated condition, leaving a candle burning which in some way set fire to the bedding. Neighbors saw the blaze and rushing in pulled the stupefied man from almost certain death. He was taken to the miners' hospital, where his injuries were dressed.

SATISFIED.

The elderly man gave his consent. "But my daughter always insisted that she wanted a husband with a title," he added.

"Well, I showed her my two," replied the young man. "One was to a town house and the other to a place in the country."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

FIRST NATIONAL IN NEW QUARTERS

WILL OCCUPY PLACE MADE VACANT BY STATE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY.

At a meeting of the directors of the Nevada First National Bank yesterday afternoon a proposition which had been submitted to them that they take over the commodious quarters formerly occupied by the State Bank and Trust Company was accepted.

The business of the Nevada First National has assumed such proportions that it was absolutely necessary that additional vault room and safety deposit boxes be provided for its growing clientele.

The bank, being a national institution, has appealed strongly to the people of Southern Nevada.

The officers and directors of the bank are Malcolm L. Macdonald, president; Lewis A. Parkhurst, Donald B. Gillies and George A. Bartlett, vice-presidents, who, together with ex-Senator W. A. Clark, of Montana; Frank A. Keith, H. T. Bragdon, Arthur J. Crocker, James H. Monteath, E. A. Montgomery, Key Pittman and John G. Kirchen compose the directorate. R. T. Harris is cashier.

The new quarters will be occupied on July 6th. It has an up-to-date vault and fixtures and conveniences equal to the large Eastern banks.

FIREWORKS WILL BE MAGNIFICENT

DISPLAY WILL TAKE PLACE THE NIGHT OF THE FOURTH ON MOUNT ODDIE.

The committee of the Fourth of July celebration having in charge the letting of the contract for the fireworks display on the night of the Fourth have signed up a contract with the Newton Fireworks company, and the pyrotechnic illumination will far exceed anything ever before put forth in the southern country. The display will occur half way up Mount Oddie, between the North Star Mine and the water tank. The following is the program:

1. Illumination of mountain.
2. Discharge of six three-pound bombshell rockets.
3. Release of four three-pound Pain's parachute rockets.
4. Release of one mammoth battery.
5. Simultaneous flight of rockets.
6. Salvo of six unequalled bombshells.
7. Amusing display of four mammoth devil among tailors.
8. Discharge of four Japanese mines.
9. Release of three mammoth batteries which discharge simultaneously.
10. New effect in displays—Salvo of three Columbus blossoms.
11. Salvo of six three-pound searchlight rockets.
12. Discharge of six three-pound triple cornucopia rockets.
13. Second grand illumination of surroundings.
14. Salvo of three Neapolitan bombshells.
15. Discharge of four mines.
16. Something entirely new—Fleur de Lis.
17. Salvo of six fountains of fire, extra large.
18. Salvo of six large dragon nests.
19. Release of two flights of rockets.
20. Salvo of six unequalled bombshells.
21. Release of two mammoth batteries.
22. Discharge of six silver maples.
23. Salvo of six four-pound golden rain rockets.
24. Discharge of six four-pound triple cornucopia rockets.
25. Release of twelve three-pound jeweled streamer rockets.
26. Discharge of four-pound diamond chain rockets.
27. Salvo of triple repeat bombshells.
28. Salvo of six unequalled bombshells.
29. Conclusion of program by burning of twelve bags of brilliant red fire, illuminating the entire mountain.

THE MANNER OF AN EXPERT.

"I guess my father must have been a pretty bad boy," said one youngster.

"Why?" inquired the other.

"Because he knows exactly what questions to ask when he wants to know what I have been doing."—Washington Star.
